

Vansh Bansal <v47vansh@gmail.com>

Hi Vansh, I'm sending over the website guidelines and the information I currently have so you can get started on the Island Meets Italy website. I'll also send you the four approved high-resolution food photos separately. My book designer, David, is preparing the remaining brand assets, including the official logo files, colour codes and typography information. I'll forward those to you as soon as I receive them. Any remaining book information, such as the ISBN and purchase link, will also be provided once available. This should give you enough to get started in the meantime. Thanks, Kenton

1 message

Kenton Lowrie <kentonlowrie9@gmail.com>
To: Vansh Bansal <v47vansh@gmail.com>
Cc: r98720@gmail.com

Tue, Aug 25, 2026 at 1:36 AM

On Sat, Aug 22, 2026, 1:22 a.m. Vansh Bansal <v47vansh@gmail.com> wrote:

Hi Kenton,

I'm Vansh, a friend of Raj's — he and I are collaborating on the Island Meets Italy site and I'll be handling the build. Thanks for the brief; it's clear and gives me a strong starting point.

To your questions:

Platform — Astro, a framework built for content and photography-led sites. It produces a fast static site, which matters because your food photography is the centrepiece. Images get optimised automatically and sized per device.

Hosting — Cloudflare Pages. Fast worldwide, SSL included, and no monthly hosting fee. Your only ongoing cost stays the GoDaddy domain renewals.

Ownership — Both domains stay registered in your name at GoDaddy, and the Cloudflare account gets created under your email with me added as a collaborator, so you're the owner throughout. The one change needed is pointing your GoDaddy nameservers to Cloudflare. That's about a two-minute change and it's reversible, so it's entirely up to you how we handle it: I can send you the two values and simple instructions to do it yourself, or we can jump on a quick call and I'll walk you through it while you're logged in. If you'd rather I just handle it directly, we can sort out access — whichever you're most comfortable with. The .ca will redirect to the .com as you asked.

What I need from you:

- Logo in vector (.ai/.eps/.svg) if available, plus your exact brand colour codes and fonts
- Cookbook cover, author photo, media kit
- All food photography at full resolution — I'll make the selections
- Your written copy: About story, homepage brand story, cookbook description and key book details
- Social links, and the email address for contact form submissions
- Any press mentions to include, or confirmation to build the section empty for now

Three things to confirm:

1. Your earlier note mentioned a shop for the cookbook and the Dry Jerk Rub, while this brief lists the purchase button as "once available." Confirming we're building the brand site for now, with the purchase button linking out once the book is on sale — a full checkout and shipping setup is a separate piece of work.
2. Is the cookbook published or upcoming, print or digital, and where will people buy it?
3. Was the photography shot professionally, and do you have the rights to use it online? Let me know if the photographer needs a credit.

The written copy tends to be the bottleneck on projects like this, so getting that over with the assets will keep us moving. Once I have everything I'll send a homepage direction for your feedback before building out the rest.

Happy to hop on a quick call if that's easier.

Best,
Vansh

Island_Meets_Italy_Website_Build_Guidelines.docx

42K